THE AQUARIAN GOSPEL OF JESUS THE CHRIST Levi

Levi H. Dowling (1844-1911) was originally an American minister of the Disciples of Christ, an Army chaplain during the Civil War, as well as an advocate of Prohibition. This book was first published in 1908; the publisher's back cover copy states that "After forty years of study and silent meditation, Levi reached a state of spiritual consciousness that permitted hiim to enter the domain of these superfine ethers and interpret their mysteries. He found that every thought of every living thing is recorded in these ethers. These, then, are the 'akashic records' from which Levi transcribed his great work." The book is divided (in biblical style) into 22 "Sections," then into chapters (which go throughout the book rather than "re-setting" with each new section), and verses; each chapter has a helpful summary preceding it.
