The premature demise of her mother brings an end to Mary's youthful flirtation with religion. Later, her new born baby is close to death and, in desperation, she turns to God. The child's unexplained recovery restores her faith and she commits her life to His service. Her story tells of theft and murder, of wife beating, adultery and rape, of terrorism and corruption. In the face of overwhelming odds can Mary remain steadfast, will her faith protect her, and will she attain her dream . . .
