Deep down inside, Jack knew he was a violent man. There had always been a beast inside him, wanting to break out of its cage. He feared it. He knew what it was: hate, pure and simple. He'd locked it away, but the monster didn't die; it grew. For days, Jack had run from the blackness that burned through his veins. But now Jack embraced the hate. He released the beast.

Police Officer Jack Stratton is hiding. Hiding from the world. From pain. From the memories of losing his best friend, Chandler, in Iraq. Suffering from PTSD, and isolated from those he cares about, the last thing Jack expects to hear is that Chandler's sister is missing. The news cuts straight to his core. Although the police think she just took off, Jack knows Michelle would never leave behind those she loved—like he did. Now Jack must take action, find Michelle, and bring her home... or die trying.
